Albuquerque, NM: University of New Mexico Press, 1984.

Subjects: Indians of North America ô History

ô West (U.S.). Women pioneers ô Attitudes ô History ô 19th century ô West (U.S.).

Summary: In this book, the author substantially revises the conventional melodramatic picture of pioneer women cowering when confronted with Indians. Frontier life required women to be self-reliant, independent, and hardy. As they learned to adapt, frontierswomen also learned to reexamine stereotypes in the light of experience. In particular, they came to see how much they had in common with American Indian women and that their prejudices about Native life were unfounded.
