Technology's child: digital media's role in the ages and stages of growing up

Cambridge, MA : MIT Press, 2023.

Subjects: Child development. Digital media. Internet and youth. Technology and youth.

Summary: What happens to the little ones, the tweens, and the teenagers, when technology--ubiquitous in the world they inhabit--becomes a critical part of their lives? This timely book brings much-needed clarity to what we know about technology's role in child development. Better yet, it provides guidance on how to use what we know to help children of all ages make the most of their digital experiences. This book explains how a self-directed experience of technology--one initiated, sustained, and ended voluntarily--supports healthy child development, especially when it takes place within the context of community support. Children's experiences with technology--their "screen time" and digital social relationships--have become an inescapable aspect of growing up. This book identifies the qualitative distinctions between different ages and stages of this engagement, and offers guidance for parents and teachers navigating the digital landscape.

AI literacy in K-16 classrooms

Cham, Switzerland : Springer, 2022.

Subjects: Artificial intelligence--Educational applications. Computer literacy--Study and teaching.

Summary: Beyond applying AI in daily life applications and educational tools, understanding how to learn and teach AI is increasingly important. Despite these emerging technology breakthroughs, AI learning is still new to educators especially to K-16 teachers. There is a lack of evidence-based studies that inform them about AI learning, including design principles for building a set of curriculum content, and pedagogical approaches as well as technological tools. The primary purpose of this book is to respond to the need to conceptualize the emerging term "AI literacy" and investigate how to teach and learn AI in K-16 education settings. This book examines different aspects of learning artefacts, pedagogies, content knowledge and assessment methods of AI literacy education, from theoretical discussions to practical recommendations for curriculum and instructional design. An exhaustive summary of current evidence with examples is illustrated in this book, as well as cutting-edge research that serves as an AI literacy model for different countries contexts. Part I, "Conceptualizing AI literacy", provides a detailed discussion on the development of the concepts and frameworks on AI literacy education, discusses the differences and similarities between AI in education (AIED) and AI literacy education, and illustrates the reasons why K-16 students need to learn AI. These concepts are brought together in Part II, "K-16 AI literacy education" to further summarize the pedagogies, learning content, learning tools and assessment methods to inform K-16 educators how to design their AI instruction at each education level. After that, part III "AI literacy for instructional designers" explores how instructional designers (i.e., AI developers and teachers) prepare themselves to become ready to design developmentally appropriate tools, platforms, services and curricula to empower students with AI literacy skills.

Hidden potential: the science of achieving greater things

New York, NY: Viking, 2023.

Subjects: Achievement motivation. Motivation (Psychology). Personality development.

Summary: We live in a world that's obsessed with talent. We celebrate gifted students in school, natural athletes in sports, and child prodigies in music. But admiring people who start out with innate advantages leads us to overlook the distance we ourselves can travel. We underestimate the range of skills that we can learn and the amount of ground that we can gain. This book offers a new framework for reaching aspirations and exceeding expectations. What matters most is not how hard we work, but how well we learn. It's not about being a genius-growth depends more on developing character skills than cognitive skills. The character skills that propel progress include the proactivity to absorb and adapt to new information, the courage to embrace discomfort, and the determination to find the beauty in imperfections. We can clear the path for more people by building better systems of opportunity in our schools, teams, and workplaces. This book breaks new ground by revealing how anyone can rise to achieve greater things. The true measure of your potential isn't the height of the peak you reach, but how far you climb to get there.

Every body curious. Season 2, Communication [DVD]

Toronto, ON : Blue Ant Media, 2021.

Subjects: Interpersonal communication--Juvenile films. Nonfiction television programs.

Summary: How do you tell someone you like them? What do you say when someone asks you out on a date? Communication is an essential part of consent, and it's a skill we work on throughout our entire lives! The kids explore ways to communicate in the Every Body Curious game of Spin-the-Bottle — no kissing involved! Hear what the teens have to say about how communication has played a role in their lives, and we meet a special guest with a question and a song.

Introducing critical theory

London, UK : Icon Books, 2012.

Subjects: Critical theory--Comic books, strips, etc. Critical theory. Culture--Study and teaching.

Summary: The last few decades have seen an explosion in the production of critical theories, with deconstructionists, poststructuralists, postmodernists, second-wave feminists, new historicists, cultural materialists, postcolonialists, black critics and queer theorists, among a host of others, all vying for our attention. This vast range of interpretations can leave one feeling confused and frustrated. This book provides a route through the tangled jungle of competing theories, in an accessible and enjoyable manner.

Every body curious. Season 2, Relationships [DVD]

Toronto, ON : Blue Ant Media, 2021.

Subjects: Dating (Social customs)--Juvenile films. Interpersonal relations--Juvenile films. Nonfiction television programs.

Summary: How does it feel to be in a relationship? What makes a relationship feel right? All healthy relationships are based on mutual respect for the people involved. Relationships of all kinds – online and offline – require open communication from all parties. Nadine and Eva talk the kids through some respectful ways to navigate rejection, break-ups, and tough conversations, and play the Every Body Curious version of the Game of Things. We also check in with the teens and talk about some of their experiences, and get a question from a special guest who knows a thing or two about respect and relationships.

Learning to be literate: more than a single story

New York, NY : Norton Professional Books, 2023.

Subjects: English language--Study and teaching (Elementary). Oral communication--Study and teaching (Elementary). Reading (Elementary).

Summary: There is not one right way to teach a child to read. Recent media stories about education have featured the “Science of Reading,” whose proponents typically present the systematic teaching of phonics as a one-size-fits-all method that guarantees reading success for all students. But as literacy scholars Patricia Paugh and Deborah MacPhee demonstrate, the decoding of words is only one of many skills that are central to an effective early literacy education. In Learning to Be Literate, they present a four-part framework for active literacy learning that eschews oppositional arguments about different approaches, and instead situates children as meaning makers: the whole point of being literate. But by using the ALL framework to inform instruction, educators can help young learners think deeply about ideas and language at the same time as they learn to work out the sounds and symbol systems of language.

What does it mean to be White?: developing White racial literacy

New York, NY : Peter Lang, 2023.

Subjects: Race relations. Racism. White people--Race identity.

Summary: What does it mean to be white in a society that proclaims race meaningless, yet is deeply divided by race? Robin DiAngelo reveals the factors that make this question so difficult: mis-education about racism; ideologies such as individualism and colorblindness; segregation; and the belief that to be complicit in racism is to be an immoral person.

Waking up white: and finding myself in the story of race

Cambridge, MA : Elephant Room Press, 2014.

Subjects: Autobiographies. Irving, Debby. Racism--United States. United States--Race relations. White people--United States--Social conditions.

Summary: For twenty-five years, Debby Irving sensed inexplicable racial tensions in her personal and professional relationships. As a colleague and neighbor, she worried about offending people she dearly wanted to befriend. As an arts administrator, she didn't understand why her diversity efforts lacked traction. As a teacher, she found her best efforts to reach out to students and families of color left her wondering what she was missing. Then, in 2009, one "aha!" moment launched an adventure of discovery and insight that drastically shifted her worldview and upended her life plan.

Heartbeat of the earth: a handbook on connecting children to nature through Indigenous teachings

Salmon Arm, BC : Ancestral Ties Press, 2022.

Subjects: Ethnoecology. Indigenous Peoples in Canada. Indigenous philosophy. Nature study--Activity programs.

Summary: Nature is a place to both play and learn. The physical self is moving and active, the mental self is thinking and questioning, the emotional self is feeling and experiencing, and the spiritual self is connecting and thankful. We see what we have been taught to see. We love and respect our natural surroundings when we see ourselves as belonging to that community. This resource leads readers on a rich learning journey as they deepen their connections to nature and culture. The activities inside instill traditional teachings of respect, honour, resourcefulness, and humility in children. This handbook is intended to inspire parents, caregivers, and educators to provide children with meaningful outdoor experiences interwoven with traditional indigenous knowledge.

Every body curious. Season 2, How do you know when you're ready? [DVD]

Toronto, ON: Blue Ant Media, 2021.

Subjects: Nonfiction television programs.

Summary: How do I know if I'm ready to date? How will I know when I'm ready to kiss someone? What if I never feel ready for any of this stuff? In this episode the kids discover that readiness can mean different things for different folks — take it from Ginger & Blue! Nadine and Eva remind us that some firsts are great, and some, not so much! Whether we try again, take a break, or decide something just isn't for us, each of us gets to decide if we're ready or not! Watch the whole episode to find out what question we have from our guest about figuring out when you're ready and the teens share some words of wisdom on the topic.

Every body curious. Season 2, Gender expression [DVD]

Toronto, ON : Blue Ant Media, 2021.

Subjects: Gender expression--Juvenile films. Gender identity--Juvenile films. Nonfiction television programs. Sex role--Juvenile films.

Summary: “What does your style say about you?” The expression of gender and personality through how we present in the world (with clothes, hair and make-up) is a right — it's an important part of how we show identity, connect with who we are and connect with other people. This episode includes Every Body Curious' first ever ultra-glamorous red carpet runway, showing that all types of clothing can be worn by any/all genders and exploring diverse looks makes the world a better and, more interesting place. When it comes to gender expression combined with high fashion our special guest has it all, and the teens talk and share what influences have shaped their gender expression.

Transitions : a mother's journey [graphic novel]

San Diego, CA : Top Shelf Productions, 2023.

Subjects: Gender identity--Comic books, strips, etc. Graphic novels. Mother and child--Comic books, strips, etc. Transgender men--Comic books, strips, etc.

Summary: When university biologist Anne Marbot learns that the 19-year-old she raised as "Lucie" is a transgender man named Alex, she's overwhelmed by questions. How can this be? Who put these ideas in your head? What if you regret it? Am I overreacting? How will your grandparents react? Why didn't I see it coming? Why is this so easy for others? Am I a bigot? What does gender really mean, anyway? How can I be the parent my child needs? It soon becomes clear that Alex is not the only one embarking on a journey of self-discovery. The road is not easy, and sometimes their relationship is bitterly strained. But Alex is sure of himself, and Anne is determined to be strong for his sake. With time, she too will be transformed, rediscovering her identity as a mother in profound new ways.

Faye, Shon

The transgender issue: trans justice is justice for all

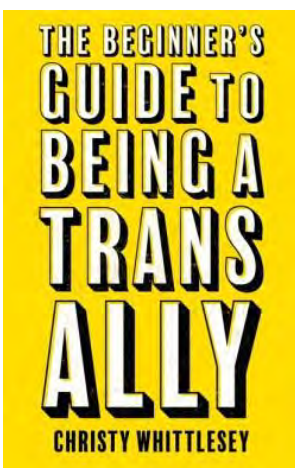

London, UK : Verso, 2022.

Subjects: Social justice. Transgender people--Social conditions. Transphobia.

Summary: In this brilliant introduction to trans politics, journalist Shon Faye gives an incisive overview of systemic transphobia and argues that the struggle for trans rights is necessary to any struggle for social justice.

So often, Faye argues, trans people are understood as a "side issue," the subjects of a toxic and increasingly polarized debate which generates reliable controversy for newspapers and talk shows. This media frenzy conceals a simple fact: that we are having the wrong conversation, a conversation in which trans people themselves are reduced to a talking point and denied a meaningful voice. With skill, rigor, and heart, Faye uncovers the reality of what it means to be trans in a transphobic society. In this compelling study, she explores issues of class, family, housing, healthcare, sex work, the prison system, and trans participation in the LGBTQ+ and feminist communities. What she finds, ultimately, is that when we fight for trans liberation, we fight for a better world for us all.

Bast, Gerald, (Ed.)

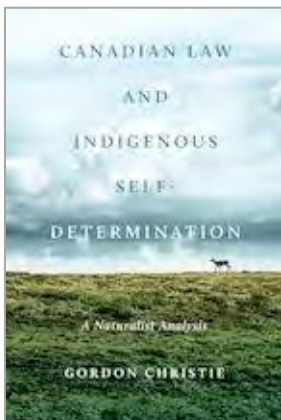

The future of education and labor

Cham, Switzerland : Springer, 2019.

Subjects: Education--Economic aspects.

Summary: This book explores the ways in which education impacts labor markets. Specifically, the contributions in this book indicate that the future of labor is creative, socially aware and inter-disciplinary while identifying the changes and innovations needed in our educational systems to meet this demand. Due to an increasing automatization (robotic manufacturing), the character of labor and work in general will change dramatically in the near future. Cross-disciplinary (inter-disciplinary and trans-disciplinary) thinking and learning is not the main focus of our educational systems.

Consequently, the systems of academic research follow and apply disciplinary or even sub-disciplinary strategies, avoiding cross-disciplinary research approaches, and not supporting inter-disciplinary academic career models. This book introduces such strategic models to better prepare the next generation of workers for the new knowledge economy, and the future of democratic societies.

Canadian law and Indigenous self-determination: a naturalist analysis

Toronto, ON : University of Toronto Press, 2019.

Subjects: Indigenous Peoples in Canada. Indigenous Peoples--Civil rights--Canada. Indigenous Peoples--Legal status, laws, etc.--Canada.

Summary: For centuries, Canadian sovereignty has existed uneasily alongside forms of Indigenous legal and political authority. Canadian Law and Indigenous Self-Determination demonstrates how, over the last few decades, Canadian law has attempted to remove Indigenous sovereignty from the Canadian legal and social landscape. Adopting a naturalist analysis, Gordon Christie responds to questions about how to theorize this legal phenomenon, and how the study of law should accommodate the presence of diverse perspectives. Exploring the socially-constructed nature of Canadian law, Christie reveals how legal meaning, understood to be the outcome of a specific society, is being reworked to devalue the capacities of Indigenous societies. Addressing liberal positivism and critical postcolonial theory, Canadian Law and Indigenous Self-Determination considers the way in which Canadian jurists, working within a world circumscribed by liberal thought, have deployed the law in such a way as to attempt to remove Indigenous meaning-generating capacity.

Finding refuge in Canada: narrative of dislocation

Edmonton, AB : AU Press, 2021.

Subjects: Refugees--Canada.

Summary: Millions of people are displaced each year by war, persecution, and famine and the global refugee population continues to grow. Canada has often been regarded as a benevolent country, welcoming refugees from around the globe. However, refugees have encountered varying kinds of reception in Canada. Finding Refuge in Canada: Narratives of Dislocation is a collection of personal narratives about the refugee experience in Canada. It includes critical perspectives from authors from diverse backgrounds, including refugees, advocates, front-line workers, private sponsors, and civil servants. The narratives collected here confront dominant public discourse about refugee identities and histories and provide deep insight into the social, political, and cultural challenges and opportunities that refugees experience in Canada. Contributors consider Canada's response to various groups of refugees and how Canadian perspectives on war, conflict, and peace are constructed through the refugee support experience. These individual stories humanize the global refugee crisis and challenge readers to reflect on the transformative potential of more equitable policies and processes.

Teaching where you are: weaving Indigenous and slow principles and pedagogies

Toronto, ON : University of Toronto Press, 2024.

Subjects: Culturally relevant pedagogy. Culturally sustaining pedagogy. Curriculum change. Experiential learning. Indigenous Peoples--Education. Social justice and education.

Summary: Using the holistic framework of the Medicine Wheel, the authors illustrate the ways in which interdisciplinary thinking, a focus on experiential learning, and the thoughtful application of the 4Rs – Respect, Relevance, Reciprocity, and Responsibility – can bring us back to the principle of teaching people, not subjects. Bringing forth the ways in which colonialism and cognitive imperialism have shaped Canadian curriculum and consciousness, the book offers avenues for the development of decolonial literacy to support the work of Indigenizing education. This book presents a text useful for teachers and educators grappling with the ongoing impacts of colonialism and the soul-work of how to decolonize and rehumanize education in meaningful ways.

Trans children in today's schools

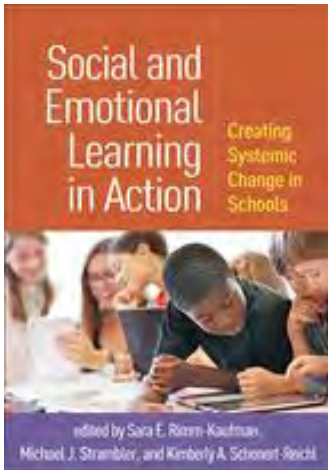

New York, NY : Oxford University Press, 2023.

Subjects: Education--Parent participation. Inclusive education. Sexual minorities in education. Teacher-student relationships. Transgender people--Education.

Transgender people--Social aspects.

Summary: For every transgender child, there is a school principal desperately asking, 'How do we (or can we even) include trans children in our school?'. In this book, Aidan Key asks us to turn this question around to consider instead 'How do we create a safe, inclusive, and healthy learning environment for any child?' When we ask that question, the onus is no longer on that child or their parents to figure out the answers but is instead the shared responsibility of our society.

Social and emotional learning in action: creating systemic change in schools

New York, NY : Guilford Press, 2023.

Subjects: Affective education. Educational change.

Summary: "Just because a school has adopted a social and emotional learning (SEL) program does not mean it will work. This book explores the conditions needed to implement, strengthen, and sustain effective SEL, and identifies paths that schools, districts, and states have taken to create those conditions. Major themes include equity of access to high-quality SEL, promoting interracial understanding in all school interactions, and enhancing the well-being and SEL skills of teachers and school leaders as well as students. Chapters describe exemplary initiatives that infuse SEL into classroom instruction, administrative decision making, school-family-community partnerships, and teacher training.

London, UK : Bloomsbury Academic, 2022.

Subjects: Educational equalization. Educational leadership. Racism in education. Social justice and education.

Summary: This edited volume expands on the existent research on anti-racist educational leadership by identifying what type of capacity building is needed for school administrators to facilitate anti-racist change in their schools. Racial inequities in education persist in part because the solutions that districts and schools choose to employ largely ignore why and how institutional and structural racism is the root cause of inequities in education. Yet, racial inequities in schooling can be redressed if districts and schools have leaders who are deeply committed to combatting racism in their daily practice and structures of schooling. This book underscores why we need more educational leaders who adopt an anti-racist stance in how they lead and are prepared to face the political complexity and uncertainty that will undoubtedly occur when they try to advance racial equity in their school communities. Through diverse perspectives and voices, including scholars in the field of educational leadership, sociologists of education, school and district administrators, and grassroots community members and activist groups, this book addresses issues related to anti-racist educational leadership at various levels.

The hip-hop mindset: success strategies for educators and other professionals

New York, NY : Teachers College Press, 2023.

Subjects: Creative teaching. Education--Philosophy. Hip-hop--Influence. Self-confidence.

Summary: A hip-hop mindset is a set of professional practices that respects and values being both original and innovative. It is a professional approach that welcomes new ways of knowing, being and doing. Creativity is central. Hip-hop habits of mind are marked by high levels of drive, hunger, confidence, and self-worth. Hip-hop culture also demands an ethic of excellence. We command attention. We claim our space. In other words we own the spaces that we occupy. We also celebrate our greatness--brag, boast, pose. These are all necessary forms of self-love. But hip-hop is also a space of honor, integrity, kinship and grace. Most importantly, the hip-hop mindset gives us all (students, educators or any professional) the permission to show up in life as your full authentic self and to shine in your own culturally unique way. It gives us freedom.

Making coaching matter: leading continuous improvement in schools

New York, NY : Teachers College Press, 2023.

Subjects: Educational change. Educational leadership. Mentoring in education. School improvement programs.

Summary: Chasing improvement, districts and schools count on coaching to promote individual learning and organizational change. Coaching is currently a popular-and multifaceted-instrument for educational improvement. Across the U.S., many types of coaches engage in many types of work with teachers as well as leaders. But coaching is often loosely defined, weakly supported, and, ultimately, underutilized. There remain misconceptions about the goals of coaching, what coaching involves, and how coaching aligns with reform efforts. As a consequence, the promise of coaching has not been fully realized. This book grapples with these issues by advancing a new, coherent framing of coaching as a lever for strategic, equitable improvement. Bridging research, theory, policy, and practice, this book explains how to make coaching matter. Specifically, it offers insights so that educational reformers and leaders can strengthen the structures and activities of coaching by weaving them with the improvement strategy and centering equity. The book illuminates and illustrates how to assemble infrastructure and create conditions so that coaching advances change in robust, sustaining, and equitable ways. In particular, it highlights the role of: leaders' clear framing of coaching, equity, and strategy; professional learning opportunities on coaching; and continuous improvement to refine coaching.

Suspended: punishment, violence, and the failure of school safety

Baltimore, MD : Johns Hopkins University Press, 2021.

Subjects: African Americans--Education. School discipline--Social aspects. School violence. Schools--Safety measures. Urban schools.

Summary: The disturbing truth: school suspension does more than impede Black students' academic achievement--it also impacts their parents' employment and can violate state and federal laws. Such punishment is meant to be a disciplinary tool that makes schools safer, but it actually does the opposite--and is particularly harmful for Black students and their families. Focusing on schools in inner-city and suburban Detroit, Charles Bell draws on 160 in-depth interviews with Black high school students, their parents, and their teachers to illuminate the negative outcomes that are associated with out-of-school suspension. Bell also sheds light on the inherent shortcomings of school safety measures as he describes how schools fail to protect Black students, which leaves them vulnerable to bullying and victimization. Collectively, their narratives reveal how receiving a suspension for fighting in school earned them respect, popularity, and a reputation for toughness--transforming school punishment into a powerful status symbol that destabilizes classrooms.

Working with boys: creating cultures of mutual respect in schools

Abingdon, Oxon, UK : Routledge, 2023.

Subjects: Boys--Education. Boys--Psychology. Moral education.

Summary: When peer-on-peer sexual abuse becomes commonplace in schools, society has a problem. The toxic attitudes and behaviour some boys display towards girls and women begin with the way those boys relate to each other, especially in school. This book offers an in-depth analysis of the problems facing boys and gives teachers the tools to help boys create relational cultures that are mutually respectful. Part One of the book looks at how boys relate to each other and how that affects the way they relate to girls and women. Part Two outlines a programme that can be delivered, lesson by lesson, to pupils aged 9 to 18. The programme covers specific lesson topics that can be adapted for different age groups, including: Anger Banter Fear of humiliation Boy hierarchies Jostling and consent Crying and emotional expression Lifestyle choices Working with Boys is a whole-school, iterative programme of study that uses guided reflection to empower boys to self-regulate their attitudes and behaviour. This book is essential reading for school leaders and teachers who want to promote a school environment in which boys are consistently principled, honourable, noble, trustworthy, upright and dignified.

Sexual orientation equality in schools: teacher advocacy and action research

Cham, Switzerland : Palgrave Macmillan, 2021.

Subjects: Discrimination in education--Australia--Prevention. Sexual minorities in education--Australia. Sexual minority students--Australia. Teachers--Training of--Australia.

Summary: This book explores how to help teachers become better advocates for sexual orientation equality in secondary schools. Examining this issue through the lens of qualitative emancipatory action research, a group of Australian teachers embarked on a journey of teacher advocacy. Critical theory has long highlighted teachers as key players in either challenging dominant social narratives, or else perpetuating oppressive systems of power through traditional forms of education. Despite this important role, the life stories of teachers, which contributed to the development of their beliefs and behaviours about sexual orientation are rarely considered in the development of anti-discriminatory policy, designing the curriculum and most importantly, in teacher training. This book suggests and frames a model for advocacy, whereby teachers engage with their personal beliefs about sexual orientation, with their role as a teacher, and commit to advocacy through action by promoting student safety, challenging heteronormative narratives and role modelling compassionate behaviours in their school environments.

Enacting praxis: how educators embody curriculum studies

New York, NY: Teachers College Press, 2023.

Subjects: Curriculum planning. Teacher participation in curriculum planning.

Summary: This book is grounded in the field of curriculum studies, within which we ask: What do curriculum workers do outside of graduate schools of education? How do scholar-practitioners (K-12 teachers, teacher educators, and community educators) do curriculum work influenced by theory and that influences theorizing in our field? In this book, we will highlight the work of six influential curriculum studies scholars: Maxine Greene, Janet Miller, William Pinar, William Schubert, William Watkins, and Carter G. Woodson. After introducing and contextualizing the work of the featured scholar, we will include three chapters by scholar-practitioners (teachers, teacher educators, and community educators) influenced by the work and ideas of the featured scholar. These essays illustrate how curriculum studies scholars are influencing practice in a variety of places; explore the ways that curriculum studies theorizing can be an intervention against technical pedagogical or curricular approaches; and focus on the conversations between theory and practice.

Decolonizing literacies: disrupting, reclaiming, and remembering relationship in literacy education

New York, NY : Routledge, 2024.

Subjects: Discrimination in higher education--Canada. Intergenerational relations--Canada. Literacy programs--Canada. Literacy--Government policy--Canada. Minorities--Education--Canada.

Summary: This volume examines the ways literacy has been used as a weapon and a means for settler colonialism, challenging colonized definitions of literacy and centering relationships as key to broadening understandings. It begins by confronting the multiple ways that settler colonialism has used literacy and definitions of literacy as a gatekeeper to participation in society. In response to settler colonialism's violent acts of extraction, displacement, and replacement enacted upon the land, the resources, the people, and understandings of literacy, the editors propose a unique approach to decolonizing understandings of literacy through a triangulation of disruption, reclamation, and remembering relationships. This is explored through a range of diverse chapter contributions, written in the form of stories, poems, art, theatre, and essays, allowing the authentic voices of the authors to shine through, and opening up the English language arts as a space for engagement and interpretation with diverse, racialized understandings of literacy.

Unity in diversity: achieving structural race equity in schools

Abingdon, Oxon, UK : Routledge, 2023.

Subjects: Anti-racism. Children with social disabilities--Education. Discrimination in education. Educational equalization. Multicultural education.

Summary: A third of all children in our schools are from racially minoritised backgrounds. Yet the data on attainment, exclusion, progression and representation indicates that our education system is structurally racist. This title explores the unconscious biases at play in our schools and demonstrates how educators can address this by improving representation in the curriculum, staffroom and on the governing/trust board. Drawing on case studies from leaders, this book demonstrates what schools are already doing to create an impactful anti-racist ethos and how these strategies may be applied in practice.

Learning to read for teens: a remedial program for the teenage student. Revised edition

New York, NY : Publisher not identified, 2019.

Subjects: Reading--Remedial teaching--Aids and devices. Reading--Remedial teaching.

Summary: This program is designed to meet the needs of learning-disabled teenagers on a second to fourth grade reading level who have not mastered decoding skills. The program assumes that the student already knows most initial and final consonants, and some sight words. The pace of the program is geared for the older student (middle school or high school). The stories are of high interest, involving problems that are often encountered by inner city adolescents.

The stories run like a novel, with character development and problems that continue from one chapter to the next. Before reading a story, students are taught to spell and to read words from a word list. The words are in linguistic patterns. If a student can spell a word, he or she will be able to read the word. The program can be taught in one year or less, leaving each student with spelling and decoding skills for most of the phonemes in the English language.

New York, NY: Creston Books, 2023.

Subjects: Astronomers--Biography--Juvenile literature. Comets--Juvenile literature. Mitchell, Maria,--1818-1889--Juvenile literature. Women astronomers--Juvenile literature.

Summary: Maria Mitchell's curiosity about the night sky led her to spend hours studying the stars. She discovered a comet as a young woman, winning an award from the King of Denmark for being the first person to discover a new comet using a telescope. Now famous as "the lady astronomer," Maria went on to become a professional astronomer, an unheard of achievement for a woman in the 19th century. She was the first woman to get any kind of government job when she was hired by the United States Naval Observatory. Then as the first woman astronomy professor in the world, Maria used her position at Vassar College to teach young women to set their sights on the sky, training new generations of female astronomers. Her story inspires all of us to reach for the stars.

The code breaker: Jennifer Doudna and the race to understand our genetic code. Young readers edition

New York, NY : Simon & Schuster Books for Young Readers, 2021.

Subjects: Biochemists--United States--Biography--Juvenile literature. Biotechnology--Juvenile literature. CRISPR (Genetics)--Juvenile literature. Doudna, Jennifer A.--Juvenile literature. Gene editing--Juvenile literature. Gene editing--Moral and ethical aspects--Juvenile literature. Genetics--Research--Juvenile literature. Nobel Prize winners--Biography--Juvenile literature. Women scientists--United States--Biography--Juvenile literature.

Summary: This young reader's edition is adapted from The Code Breaker by Walter Isaacson. When Jennifer Doudna was a sixth grader she read The Double Helix, James Watson's account of how he and Francis Crick had discovered the structure of DNA, the spiral-staircase molecule that carries the genetic instruction code for all forms of life. This book guided Jennifer Doudna to focus her studies not on DNA, but on what seemed to take a backseat in biochemistry: figuring out the structure of RNA, a closely related molecule that enables the genetic instructions coded in DNA to express themselves. Doudna became an expert in determining the shapes and structures of these RNA molecules--an expertise that led her to develop a revolutionary new technique that could edit human genes. Today gene-editing technologies such as CRISPR are already being used to eliminate simple genetic defects that cause disorders such as Tay-Sachs and sickle cell anemia. For now, however, Jennifer and her team are being deployed against our most immediate threat--the coronavirus--and you have just been given a front row seat to that war.

Madeira Park, BC: Harbour Publishing, 2021.

Subjects: Ethnobotany--British Columbia. Indigenous peoples in Canada. Plants--British Columbia--Identification. Plants, Useful--British Columbia--Identification.

Summary: Respected Cowichan Tribe Elder and botanical expert Luschiim Arvid Charlie, began his education in early childhood, learning from his great grandparents and others of their generation. This book represents his dedication to the survival of the Hul'q'umi'num' language and traditional knowledge of plants for future generations. From the healing properties of qaanlhp (arbutus) to the many practical applications of q'am (bull kelp), the information presented in this remarkable guide shares knowledge of plants that Luschiim is familiar with through his own Elders' teachings and by way of direct experience over the course of his lifetime, and compiled from field outings and interviews with notable ethnobiologist and botanist Nancy Turner. In this unprecedented collection of botanical information, over 140 plants are categorized within their broad botanical groupings. Each entry is illustrated with a colour photo and includes the plant's common, scientific and Hul'q'umi'num' names; a short description; where to find it; and cultural knowledge related to the plant. Additional notes encompass plant use, safety and conservation; the linguistic writing system used for Hul'q'umi'num' plant names; as well as miscellaneous notes from interviews with Luschiim.

Who wrote this?: how AI and the lure of efficiency threaten human writing

Stanford, CA : Stanford University Press, 2023.

Subjects: Artificial intelligence. Authorship--Data processing. Authorship--Technological innovations. Technology--Social aspects. Writing--Automation.

Summary: Today's eerily impressive artificial intelligence writing tools present us with a crucial challenge: As writers, do we unthinkingly adopt AI's time-saving advantages or do we stop to weigh what we gain and lose when heeding their siren call? To understand how AI is redefining what it means to write and think, linguist and educator Naomi Baron leads us on a journey connecting the dots between human literacy and today's technology. From nineteenth century lessons in composition, to mathematician Alan Turing's work creating a machine for deciphering war-time messages, to contemporary engines like ChatGPT, Baron gives readers a spirited overview of the emergence of both literacy and AI, and a glimpse of their possible future. As the technology becomes increasingly sophisticated and fluent, it's tempting to take the easy way out and let AI do the work for us. Baron cautions that such efficiency isn't always in our interest. As AI plies us with suggestions or full-blown text, we risk losing not just our technical skills but the power of writing as a springboard for personal reflection and unique expression.

Embodied playwriting: improv and acting exercises for writing and devising

New York, NY: Routledge, 2023.

Subjects: Improvisation (Acting)--Study and teaching. Playwriting--Study and teaching.

Summary: This title is the first book to compile new and adapted exercises for teaching playwriting in the classroom, workshop, or studio through the lens of acting and improvisation. The book provides access to the innovative practices developed by seasoned playwriting teachers from around the world who are also actors, improv performers, and theatre directors. Borrowing from the embodied art of acting and the inventive practice of improvisation, the exercises in this book will engage readers in performance-based methods that lead to the creation of fully imagined characters, dynamic relationships, and vivid drama. Step-by-step guidelines for exercises, as well as application and coaching advice, will support successful lesson planning and classroom implementation for playwriting students at all levels, as well as individual study. Readers will also benefit from curation by editors who have experience with high-impact educational practices and are advocates for the use of varied teaching strategies to increase accessibility, inclusion, skill-building, and student success.

Eleven words for love: a journey through Arabic expressions of love

Somerville, MA : Candlewick Press, 2022.

Subjects: Exiles--Juvenile fiction. Love--Juvenile fiction. Muslims--Juvenile fiction. Picture books for children. Stories in rhyme.

Summary: A family has fled their homeland in search of safety in another country, carrying a single suitcase. As their journey unfolds, the oldest child reflects on the special contents of that suitcase: photo albums that evoke eleven of many names for love in Arabic. From sunshine-warm friendship to the love that dissolves all tears; from the love that makes you swoon to the love that leaves you yearning for the heart's homeland--her family has experienced it all. Illustrated in vibrant watercolor pencil and collage on textured card stock, this moving scrapbook shows a family embracing an unknown future even as they honor the past, casting immigration and the refugee experience in the light of universal human connection.

Moon of the turning leaves: a novel

Toronto, ON: Random House Canada, 2023.

Subjects: Dystopian fiction. End of the world--Fiction. Father and daughters--Fiction. Indigenous Peoples--Fiction. Survival--Fiction.

Summary: It's been over a decade since a mysterious cataclysm caused a permanent blackout that toppled infrastructure and thrust the world into anarchy. Evan Whitesky led his community in remote northern Ontario off the rez and into the bush, where they've been living off the land, rekindling their Anishinaabe traditions in total isolation from the outside world. As new generations are born, and others come of age in the world after everything, Evan's people are in some ways stronger than ever. But resources in and around their new settlement are beginning to dry up, and the elders warn that they cannot afford to stay indefinitely. Evan and his fifteen-year-old daughter, Nangohns, are elected to lead a small scouting party on a months-long trip to their traditional home on the north shore of Lake Huron--to seek new beginnings, and discover what kind of life--and what dangers--still exist in the lands to the south.

The circle

Toronto, ON : Hamish Hamilton, 2023.

Subjects: Families--Fiction. Intergenerational relations--Fiction. Juvenile detention--Fiction. Métis--Fiction. Restorative justice--Fiction. Siblings--Fiction.

Summary: The concept was simple. You sit a bunch of people in a circle-- everyone who hurt, everyone who got hurt, all affected--and let them share. Some people, it helped them heal, for sure. Others went in angry and left a different kind of angry. Learned how the blame belonged on the system, the history, the colonizer, the big things that were harder to change than one bad person. The day that Cedar Sage Stranger has been both dreading and longing for has finally come: her sister Phoenix is getting out of prison. The effect of Phoenix's release cascades through the community. M, the young girl whom she assaulted, is triggered by the news. Her mother, Paulina, is worried and her cousin is angry--all feel the threat of Phoenix's release. When Phoenix is seen lingering outside the school to catch a glimpse of her son, Sparrow, the police get a call to file a report--but the next thing they know, she has disappeared. Amid accusations and plots for revenge, past grievances become a poor guide in a moment of danger, and the clumsy armature of law enforcement is no match for the community. Cedar and her and Phoenix's mother, Elsie, continue down different paths of healing, while everyone in their lives form a circle around the chaos, the calm within the storm, and the beauty in the darkness.

Aliya's secret: a story of Ramadan

Toronto, ON : Owlkids Books, 2023.

Subjects: Fasts and feasts--Islam--Juvenile fiction. Islam--Customs and practices--Juvenile fiction. Picture books for children. Ramadan--Juvenile fiction.

Summary: It looks like someone took a big bite out of the moon--and that marks the beginning of Ramadan! As her Abba and Ammi prepare for their month-long fast, Aliya has a secret: she's going to fast, too! Even though Ammi told her she's not allowed to until she turns thirteen. At school, Aliya starts her secret fast full of determination. She skips lunch, despite her rumbling tummy, and doesn't give in even when she's offered a birthday cupcake with sprinkles! But, later in the day, while baking baklava with Amma, the temptation proves too hard to resist and she takes a big bite. At first, Aliya is terribly disappointment in herself for giving in to her hunger, but she soon learns that there are other ways that she can celebrate Ramadan. She and her parents spend the month preparing and delivering meals to people in need. And after celebrating Eid-ul-Fitr, the Festival of Breaking the Fast, Aliya looks forward to doing her own month-long fast in a few years--but no more secrets for her!
